Jeff has delivered training in effective writing and reading strategies and instruction for over 18 years. Teachers are inspired by Jeff's lively workshops. They are packed with practical strategies that can be used in the long and the short term to develop critical thinkers, writers, and readers. The National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE) recently awarded Jeff's writing and selected him as one of the organization's consultants as well. This is a professional development opportunity that will enhance the teaching of writing across the school district.
